REPARATION PLAN S U. S. VICTORY

Washington Pleased That American Idea Was Accepted.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.
Washington, Jan. 31.—Victories are sometimes delayed, but history records them none the less. At Washington the American idea of reparations is pleased over the triumph at Paris of the American idea of reparations. The American idea of reparations is pleased over the triumph at Paris of the American idea of reparations.

For months the American financial commissioners at Paris fought for the fixing of a definite sum. But the Premier Clemenceau was afraid that any sum that might be fixed would be disappointing to his people. He thought that the Germans would be swept into political power. President Wilson admitted before the senate foreign relations committee at the White House that the failure to fix the indemnity to be paid by Germany would be a political disaster.

Most everybody believes the fixing of the indemnity is the biggest event that has happened since the peace treaty itself was signed.

The American financial commissioners at Paris—Norman Davis, who is at present under-secretary of state, Thomas W. W. Morgan and Co. Vance McCormick and Howard D. Hatch—insisted at Paris that the allies fix a term of 30 years. The reports from Paris indicate that the allies are willing to accept it to 40 years. The American advisers didn't suggest a specific sum, though it was commonly reported that they favored twenty billions of dollars. Paris reported that the indemnity will be fixed at fifty-five billions.

But the vital fact is that the allies at last have accepted the principle of the American commission, namely, the fixing of a definite term and minimum of some kind with a definite term of years. A personal canvass of the various men who know the reparations question both from a bank and from a government point of view leads to the conclusion that the problem is by no means settled. A start has been made. The allies have agreed among themselves, but when they approach the Germans, it is certain that the latter will show the facility of imposing such a large sum as fifty-five billions. And the Germans will find considerable support in the United States for their view. The allies will naturally have a good deal of respect for American opinion for it is no secret that as soon as the Germans give the allies bonds to the amount of the indemnity, the allies will endeavor to use those reparations bonds as collateral for foreign loans they may wish to place in the United States or as part of the payment of their debts.

Wait No Reparation Bonds.
But at this juncture it is opportune to reveal to all concerned what is in the mind of the Wilson administration and what will be in the mind of the Harding administration—for there is no substantial difference of opinion between republicans and democrats on this point—namely, that America will not accept any reparations bonds in exchange for government loans nor will Americans generally buy reparations bonds as an investment until the United States is satisfied that the Germans can pay the amount imposed. In any event, a conservative opinion here is that Americans will wait anyhow at least a couple of years before buying German reparations bonds as an investment.

Back of the hesitancy which is reflected in official as well as banking circles is a doubt as to how far the French mean to go in regulating German affairs. The more or less official view here is that the French have already gone too far for their own good in holding a military club over the Germans and interfering with their opportunities to get raw materials that are requisite to manufacturing.

At the State Capital

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—Reorganization of the administrative machinery for governing Wisconsin schools is at what is considered the principal constructive educational measure of the session to be brought into the legislature by Senator George D. Skogmo of River Falls.

The plan is expected to afford the basis on which final agreement will be reached when the legislators have thrashed over the educational problems that exist in the state. It proposes consolidation of the present hydra-headed administrative system and at the same time is said to overcome objections that have been raised to the one board plan.

The Skogmo Plan.
At the top of Wisconsin's new educational structure would stand the reorganized State Board of Education given broad power over inspection and with the principal duty of outlining the constructive educational policies of the state.

Administrative detail would be directly lifted from the board by retaining the board of normal school and university regents, and the vocational board. This move was said to remedy what was considered the principal objection to the one board plan to be offered by Senator George L. Buek of Racine.

The state superintendent of public instruction would serve as an advisory member of all bodies and would be given equal power in comparison with the other members.

Administration of elementary and high schools is placed in the hands of a board of public instruction. The board is empowered to employ a director of rural schools, a director of elementary schools, a director of high schools and a director of teacher training institutions. Inspectors would work under these directors, giving a unity to the entire system.

A Compromise Measure.
The bill, brought forward at this time as a compromise measure, is expected to develop into a bitter factional fight as a result of introduction of the bill calling for abolition of the state board of education, and to direct it to what is considered the more serious problem of entire reorganization of the state school administrative system.

Principal features of the bill to be introduced by Senator Skogmo as a solution to the educational problem are as follows:

Saving of at least $50,000 annually by a cooperative system of inspection and by consolidation which would remove the interlocking jurisdictions of the present so-called hydra-headed system.

Abolition of the state board of education, the office of the state superintendent of public instruction, and most of the duties of the vocational board under the measure. The board of education limited to inspection and to formulation and execution of constructive educational policies.

The boards of Normal School and University regents reduce in membership for efficiency and economy; the function of routing administration to be maintained entirely distinct from the reorganized state board of education.

Maintenance of a small Vocational Board for the administration of Stout Institute and the Plattville Mining School, this board to have no jurisdiction over local vocational schools.

Important interests of vocational schools would be controlled through the reorganized state board of education, which would be required to have representatives of both employers and employees in its membership.

Reduce Inspectors.
The new board would employ fewer inspectors traveling from Madison, and would substitute a cooperative system of inspection based on scholarship and efficiency. One inspector would be chosen from each Normal School, one from Stout Institute and two or more from the University; the salaries to be paid by the respective institutions. The time of each inspector would be limited to 30 days in each year.

The plan of reorganization has resulted from a careful study of the situation, according to Senator Skogmo. It represents a middle ground between those who feel that Wisconsin should have a complete centralized directorate of education, and those who would go back to the old system.

The educational fight has been precipitated by bill of Assembly member Olson of Monroe calling for abolition of the state board of education. A battle is expected on every educational measure offered, but is thought

COOPER SEES NO POSSIBILITY OF NEW TAX ON CARS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—Senator Henry A. Cooper, member of the committee on finance, today in conference visited Janesville for a few hours.

"I will not be sworn into office until the special session," he said to the Gazette. "That may be some time in March or April. Up to that time I am at home and have no position in the work of the government. This does not seem to be understood generally and I am in receipt constantly of letters from constituents who ask me to do things in congress, even to making a fight on the floor. Judge Randall is still in congress and will be a member of the finance committee. I do not believe that my friends will be wondering why I am not doing something in congress."

Speaking of the automobile tax bill, he said that he does not believe the present congress which is republican will pay any attention to any recommendation of the present administration and certainly not of Mr. Secretary Harrison's reference to raising revenue.

"The next congress will be overwhelmingly republican and will have a policy of its own on taxation and I am sure that the republicans will not enact any legislation based on the present secretary of the treasury's recommendations."

Judge Rosa to be Named.
The nomination of Charles L. Rosa of Detroit as Tax Commissioner to replace Nils P. Haugen, who has held the position for the past 20 years, will be presented to the senate for confirmation on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week, according to authoritative prediction.

Mr. Rosa has been a prominent backer of Governor Blaine and Senator La Follette, supporting them actively in their political campaigns. He was a member of the 1917 legislature and was at one time county judge.

There is expected to be no opposition to his selection which will mark the end of the service of Mr. Haugen, the author of Wisconsin's income tax law.

Judge Kerwin's Death.
The death of Justice Kerwin, Chief Justice of the Wisconsin Supreme Court, on Saturday, was a great loss to the state, according to expression of all members of the court who have been his associates during several years.

Justice Kerwin, who has served 10 years and given some of the most important decisions of the court, it was said that he will be confronted with a difficult problem in choosing one who could fill the position his satisfactory.

His choice will be made from four men, two from Milwaukee and two from Oshkosh. In all probability, W. D. Corrigan and Christian Doerflinger of Milwaukee are two likely appointees, as well as W. L. Harbart and E. J. Dempsey of Oshkosh.

The man chosen from among these four will serve until 1925 unless a special election is held in 1922 to fill the vacancy. The constitution provides that a supreme court vacancy shall be filled by appointment of the governor, which shall continue until a successor is elected and qualified.

Another provision of the constitution states that the term of office of a justice shall be for six years, the term of Justice Kerwin expires in 1922 with his reelection to be held this year so that the newly appointed justice would hold through this year and until a special election of 1922 is held.

Insurance and Carelessness.
Insurance and carelessness continue to be the largest factor in deaths and injuries caused by fires in Wisconsin, the report of the Industrial Commission made public today shows. More than two-thirds of the accidents from fires during 1920 are attributed to preventable causes.

Children are heavy sufferers in the list of 83 deaths and 112 persons injured resulting from fires during the past year. Playing with matches caused the deaths of eleven and seriously injured six. Five children met death playing with matches, two from playing about stoves, and five from exploding gasoline stoves.

Carelessness in handling gasoline, particularly for cleaning purposes in private homes, caused eight deaths and nine serious injuries.

Compared to 1919 there is an increase in the number of deaths, but 1920 shows a decrease in the number of persons seriously injured. In 1919 there were 75 deaths from fires and 147 injured.

The report points out that there were more than one-third as many deaths due to fires as from all industrial accidents.

A Late Christmas Gift.
Santa Claus comes to the ten employees in the office of Henry Johnson, state treasurer, every year when the January pay roll is distributed. Since he took office ten years ago Mr. Johnson has made a practice of increasing every employee's pay a small amount each year, a practice which he believes is unique in governmental offices.

The increases are shared in by every employee from the chief accountant down to the night watchmen, and the men with the smallest pay usually get the largest proportional increase.

This year the increase amounts to $100 a month for the chiefs office, but the two night watchmen each are increased $15 a month, while the advances for other employees range down to $3 a month for the better paid clerks.

Another of Mr. Johnson's unique rules is to employ married men only. The treasurer's office handled more than $56,000,000 in state funds last year.

Petty Details Don't Keep One From God's Kingdom

"There are no technicalities" or petty details which determine whether a man shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven," declared Rev. Frank J. Scribner during his sermon Sunday morning in the First Congregational church. The sermon was given on the topic, "Why a Church?"

The church started with a certain job, a certain mission," continued the pastor. "That mission has never changed or will it ever change. The job came first, the machinery and details of the church came later. The church is a creature of men and women working for a certain end."

Command of Christ.
"The first disciples received the command from the Master, 'To go forth to make disciples of all nations.' The function of the church has been broadened but the object is over the same. The first reason is to change men of the world to Christians. There is created in the church an atmosphere whereby you and I may reach God. It is hearts united in worship."

"I do not believe that we come to church to hear a sermon. Rather God is close when we seek him together. The opportunity of united prayer calls for reverent and careful attention."

"Will of God."
"There was a time when the church tried to do it all, government, schools and religion. It was not a success. The church is only called upon to teach what Christ commanded and be a living illustration of Gospel. We are interested in policies just so long as we are interested in worship."

TOBACCO GROWERS URGED TO UNITE

Farmers May Case Their Own Crop Unless Buying Starts Soon.

Unless an outlet for the Rock county 1920 crop of tobacco is apparent at fair prices before winter weather endangers the weed from sweating, growers will be urged through the Farm Bureau and the association to save the crop through co-operative efforts.

This announcement was made by officers of the Rock County Tobacco Growers' association today in preparation for the meeting to be held by the bureau probably early in February. Action to relieve the farmers from the present threatening situation will come up during the annual meeting of the bureau Thursday.

Damage From Weather.
Practically 80 per cent of the total amount of tobacco raised in this county is still in the hands of the growers. If the present spring like weather continues or the weather turns warmer the growers must put the crop through a warehouse or face a decided loss from sweating in the open sheds. Having to hold the crop until April in view of the present weather would result in a serious financial loss is the statement by the growers.

"It is just the same old fight all over again," declared C. E. Culver, president of the Rock County association. "The warehouse men and buyers report bid in hopes of frightening the growers into the belief that there is not going to be any market. When their power begins to believe there is going to be poor prospects of marketing his crop, then the buyer can obtain a low price and have it accepted."

Hold Growers Together.
"We want an organization which will hold the growers together! Some cooperative work that will prevent them losing heart. On the 1st of January which was caused by the association with a few members; we made more money through the sale of rags and trash than was offered on the entire crop," declared President Culver.

"That goes to show the possibilities of co-operative marketing in tobacco," he continued.

The association with 78 members last year, raised about 1000 cases of tobacco. Much of it is still un-girded. It is claimed that the De Forest warehouse, which is operated by the association, can handle a large part of the tobacco at present un-girded in the county. Additional storage room would have to be obtained.

County Agent R. T. Glasco stated today the tobacco meeting for the growers would be called shortly after the farmers return from the market conference at Madison which opened today.

JUSTICE KERWIN BURIED IN NEENAH

Madison, Jan. 31.—The burial of Supreme Court Justice J. C. Kerwin, who died suddenly at his home in Madison last Saturday, took place in Oak Hill cemetery, Neenah, today.

Although Justice Kerwin's death occurred unexpectedly, it was caused by an illness protracted over a period of several years, the same which necessitated his absence from the supreme court bench for several months last year. At 2 p. m. Saturday he suffered a sinking spell, after working until 8:30 Friday without complaint.

Justice Kerwin was the oldest member of the Badger supreme court in point of years. He was born in Menasha, May 4, 1850, and visited the schools of that city until he took up the study of law at the university in 1873. Taking up the profession, Judge Kerwin officiated as city attorney of Menasha for 12 years. In 1904 he was elected to the supreme court and re-elected in 1914.

News Notes From Movieland

Pola Negri is the famous continental star whose debut on the American screen in "Passion" marks the first invasion of the motion picture field in the United States of big foreign productions since the world war. "Passion" is a sensational play depicting some of the most thrilling and picturesque incidents in the French revolution and the romantic life of Madame Du Barry.

Miss Pola Negri, who makes her American debut as a star, is well known in the old world on both stage and screen. Critics and others who have seen this screen version of that immortal French classic, the story of the little milliner who afterwards became known as Madame Du Barry, comment most highly upon the remarkable versatility of this foreign actress. This photograph of her shows her in a scene with any actress when it comes to beauty.

"Passion" was directed by Ernst Lubitsch, "the Grinch of Europe."

RAY CELEBRATES. The completion of the first year of the corporate life of Charles Ray Productions, Inc., was celebrated in Los Angeles recently, when Mr. and Mrs. Ray were guests of the company's officers at a dinner and theater party.

WHAT'S IN A NAME. Wanda Hawley wasn't born that way a-tall. She started out as Selma Plutack, and she changed the last half to the tune of the Lohengrin wedding march. When she went into pictures, it was as Selma Hawley. But when she played on stage, Douglas Fairbanks in "Mr. Fish," he didn't like "Selma" and advised her to choose another name for screen purposes.

"You christen me, then," said Selma. "I will," said Douglas, and he bestowed upon her the name of "Wanda," which she has carried to stardom.

"THE KID" AGAIN. "Jackie" Coogan, the six-year-old boy who plays opposite Charles Chaplin in "The Kid," is to be featured in a screen version of "The Bad Boy." The story is being adapted for the screen by Bernard McConville, who is responsible for certain Pickford and Ray pictures. Nate Witt will direct.

Mount Shasta has had no eruption within the memory of man, but geologists indicate the last eruption occurred in comparatively recent times.

A WEATHER BOOK WORTH WHILE. An extract from the Rev. I. R. Hicks Almanac reads: "Any way your rubber boots will come in handy during the last half of January." Certainly a true statement, but no more so than his other predictions which have come true as set down in the "Weather Book."

The weather is important to everybody. You can have a forecast for the whole of 1921. Twenty-five cents in addition to your renewal or new subscription price to the Gazette gives you this book, the regular price of which is 50 cents. Order yours today.

The complexion which always attracts

She may not be beautiful, this girl who wins attention, and other women wonder what men see in her. Look again, and the compelling charm proves to be a smooth, fresh, flawless skin, radiant with the charm of health.

Such a complexion transforms even plain features and lends beauty to every type. It is an attraction every woman can achieve if she will learn to give her skin proper care.

Cleopatra's beauty secret
 The means was discovered 3,000 years ago in ancient Egypt. The use of palm and olive oils as cosmetic cleansers was one of Cleopatra's beauty secrets. There is nothing known so good for skins as palm and olive oils. And these are blended in Palmolive soap.

Soap is essential
 Nothing takes the place of soap. Use whatever else you will. But once a day, wash off the oil, dirt, perspiration and powder, which clog the pores.

To do that you need soap. Not ordinary soap, harsh and irritating. That is not for faces. Use a soap which is an emollient, which is smooth and balmy in effect. Such soap is made by modern science from blended palm and olive oils.

Before you sleep
 Use powder and rouge if you wish, but don't leave them on at night. Remove them with a soft, penetrating, cleansing lather.

Blackheads and pimples result from clogged pores. Wash your face nightly with mild, pure soothing Palmolive soap and protect yourself against skin troubles.

Millions of women keep their skins clean and healthy, smooth and fresh, by the use of Palmolive soap.

10 cents the modest price
 No higher price can buy a better skin soap. The supreme ingredients in a facial soap are palm and olive oils.

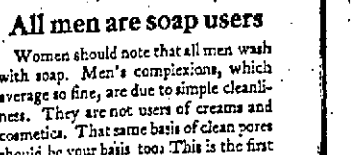

The Palmolive price is due to mammoth production. And to our policy—to bring the best within the reach of all.

All men are soap users
 Women should note that all men wash with soap. Men's complexions, which average to fine, are due to simple cleanliness. They are not users of creams and cosmetics. That same blend of clean pores should be your basis too! This is the first requisite.

WEST HAS GOLDEN FUTURE, SAYS BARNES

A sermon, big with the far reaching possibilities of the western country, was preached Sunday morning at the Baptist church by Dr. L. C. Barnes, New York. Barnes was a missionary among the American Indians for many years, and in his message of yesterday, he gave thoughts gathered from the many years of his life. His text was "O King, I was not disobedient unto the Heavenly Vision," and the vision, he said, was the future of the western country. Barnes said that the western country has a golden future, and that it is up to the people of the west to make the most of it. He said that the western country is a land of opportunity, and that it is up to the people of the west to make the most of it.

A SWEETHEART AT THIRTY

The Story of a Woman's Transformation
BY MARION RUBINCAM

CHAPTER XVIII
MARK COMES AGAIN

It seems to me as I look back over that summer, that it was a series of circumstances, from which we dropped immediately to a dead level. That momentous day—the day the terrible letter came—had been a day of the most tempestuous emotions possible, as though nothing important had happened.

Our hired men left hurriedly and mysteriously, and went out to their work. Jim, as he gently as though he had not been through some of the most tempestuous emotions possible, not two hours before, came, late, and with a heavy heart, and as to whether his home would be broken up or not—had no effect on his appetite. He ate five chops and regretted the fact that he had only ginger-ale and coffee for dessert.

James did not appear and I thought it best for him to wait until the meal was over. But he came in, a little frightened, and sullen finally. Esther ate as steadily and as much as usual—indeed, the only two people in the family not directly affected by the turning's. The fact was, the only two upset for road—VI and myself.

"I dunno what I'll do about it," Esther told me that afternoon.

And a little later in the day she remarked:

"I guess maybe all men are alike."

So she was going to forgive him after all. I suspected as much from the beginning.

"They all alike?" I asked her, the eternal question in her blue wistful eyes. "Do you think so? Do you think Bud's—just like all the rest?"

And when I could not answer, she answered herself:

"I'm sure he isn't. Bud's different—from all the others. Don't you think so, Aunt Enid? Almost contented by deceiving herself, she went on out with satisfaction how my skin cleared and took on color when I washed and massaged it, and how my face lost years when I dressed my hair nicely. I deliberately chose the most youthful of my gowns, and they went downstairs again to my dressing.

After all, I had gained something. I no longer looked young in spite of myself, but at least I looked less than my age. I was very careful of my dressing.

A grating of wheels outside made me look up. Mark Unjohn's familiar little car stopped at our gate. Mark's too familiar face peered over the door and smiled at me. I could do nothing but ask him in.

"I hear you're going over to Laura's for supper Sunday?" he said, sitting down on the porch—and forgetting the formality of removing his hat.

"I nodded."

"How are they getting on?" he asked amiably.

"They're quite happy, I think," I answered. "We haven't seen them since the wedding. Mr. Dwyer gave Charlie a vacation, though it was the busy season, and they went off for a little trip."

"Yes. Well, I stopped off a minute as I drove past," Mark said. "Nice place there, everything looks so new. Is it still and new, don't you?"

"No, I don't," I answered promptly.

"Don't you?" he laughed, looking over at me. I decided he had gained nothing but pounds and one more chin since I saw him last. "Well, you and me don't agree on lots of things. But we're pretty good friends, anyway, ain't we Enid?"

"Yes, very good," I answered, not very enthusiastically.

"Well, that's all right then," he said, getting up. "I'm going to Laura's Sunday, too. She asked me to stop in for you and drive you over. I'll be here at 4 and we'll make a round about trip of it."

New Hats for Spring Vary Greatly in Size and Are Colorful

What of the spring, chapeau? This is the all absorbing question occupying mind's attention right now. Are they small or large? Are they round, chin, chin or tricorn in shape? What are the favored fabrics and the favored colors? All these questions and more are being asked by the women who are planning their spring outfits. Here is a great variation as to sizes with the small or medium hats in the lead and tricorn and poke shapes emphasized. The smartest hats are made of fabric, although the Milan kempas are often combined with tulle and tulle silk. Satin cap, straw, yocco straw and tagal facings are some of the new phases of the new millinery than ever. They range from black and gray with warm shades of brown for street wear, to rich tapestry colors of Persia and the old cloisonne shades of the orient. All the gorgeous orange shades from yellow to red copper, and brilliant flame and jade are also seen and are particularly good in sport hats.

Here are three new hats, a small suit hat, a large dress hat and a hat for southern wear or late spring and early summer costumes.

together and then add one teaspoon of cinnamon, one-half teaspoon of ginger, two cups of cooked pumpkin and one and one-half cups of milk. Turn into a baking dish and bake in a slow oven for 40 minutes.

Black Pudding—One cup of molasses, one egg, teaspoon ginger, teaspoon soda dissolved in two-thirds cup boiling water, one and one-half cups flour. Steam one and one-half hours without moving. Serve with any sauce desired.

Cottage Pudding—One egg, one-quarter cup butter, three-quarters cup sugar, one cup milk, two and one-quarter cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, three rounding teaspoons baking powder. Mix and bake like a cake. Serve with lemon sauce or strawberry sauce. Use medium flame.

The Letters of Tessie and Joe

DEAR TESSIE:

You know there's nothing I'd rather do than eat a slouch of sourkraut, except maybe pound the old ear in slumber, and tonight at dinner I lifted the personal embargo on sourkraut that's been blocking my comfort ever since we declared war, and now, although we're still enjoying a state of war against Germany, I personally feel at peace with all the world for the first time since I put the sourkraut embargo into effect.

When I read in this afternoon's paper that German opera is now being publicly garaged in both New York and Paris, something told me that I would order a pitchfork load of sourkraut for dinner, with a pig knuckle nesting cozy in the midst of it like a beauty in a bed of innocence. And believe me, Tessie, I made it look sick. And afterwards I leaned back and reflected that the Kaiser wouldn't have been such a boob if he'd only had a little sense, and there are worse places than Germany, though I couldn't think of any because the way I felt just then on the outside of all that sourkraut, I loved the whole world. I adored Turkey, I was crazy about China, and I felt nothing would please me more than to endow a lot of free libraries in the heart of Africa.

At the same time, I felt much relieved that the Wagner opera was exploding in Paris instead of in this one mile here, because I tried to listen to some Wagner music once and my ears have never forgiven me. And to think that there are a lot of birds who get the same effect out of Wagner music as I do out of a block of sourkraut! It just goes to prove the Germans are a fox bunch and when we sign up peace we can make the occasion more solemn by digging up the grave where we buried the stein and bury the hatchet there too.

Love to self and child.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

"I AM CONSIDERED 'GOOD-LOOKING' in the eyes of the most flattering and disgusting expression found in my column. It does not convey a picture of an attractive girl in the least degree. Instead, it gives a silly girl who hasn't sense enough to realize her own limitations."

If I printed the statement as often as it occurs in the letters sent to me, I should wonder how long it would take to resolve never to look at it again. Very often I print the expression because it gives a little character to the girl and sometimes softens the reader's attitude toward my more or less brutal answer.

It is a failing of human nature to sympathize with oneself. Fortunately plain people rarely realize how plain they are. They love flattery and glorify their own imperfections. When a girl writes a letter without trying to impress upon the reader the fact that she is "good-looking," she seems far more beautiful than the girl who has so little delicacy that she advertises her vanity.

In a personal letter to me, a young woman said in the letters sent to me she was about 14 years old that she had not one feature which could be called beautiful. Even her nature was sullen and irritable. She was so discouraged with herself that she wanted to die. Then an encouraging thought came to her; she resolved to be kind and sweet. At first it was hard, but out of desperation she consoled herself and found that her lips light when she was angry and to sing when she was sullen. The woman's letter was not all about herself. She was willing to see how far I thought it would be advisable for her to help a poverty-stricken family. When I finished reading the letter, I felt that I had come in touch with a beautiful and charming personality. It seemed a pity that I could not make her letter public so that others could feel her charm.

Dear Mrs. Thompson, I am 16

WHAT SHALL I DO?

Answered by VIRGINIA PAGE

Perhaps You Will Love Her

"Dear Miss Page: My boy who lives in another town has just written that he is engaged. I am heart-broken. I don't even know the girl. He says he wants me to be nice to her. What am I to do?—His Mother."

Oh, don't be heart-broken! Think how happy you made his father years ago—would you want your boy to miss all that happiness, to say nothing of the safety that lies within a cozy little home? It isn't her fault that you don't know the girl, now is it, and it is a misfortune that can probably be easily remedied.

What shall you do? First, fight it out with yourself and decide that you won't be jealous and resentful, but that you will welcome her as a dear daughter, for his sake. Then write her a little note right from your heart, you will know what to say to make her feel welcome. Perhaps she is dreading getting acquainted with you as much as you are fearing her; and out of your lifetime's story of knowledge and sympathy and understanding you can help her so much which will be helping Son, remember.

And then, if it is at all possible, I would invite her to visit you. But only if you are sure that you have won the battle with your mother, love and are quite reconciled to a daughter-in-law. Because the visit will be hard enough for the poor girl at best. Does that surprise you? Well, don't forget that if she should come, you would be at home, mistress of all you survey, and people and surroundings you know well, know the pains and a mother's knowledge—while she would be a stranger, a guest amid new surroundings, keenly aware of the fact that she was being "looked over" and probably just a little resentful that she should have to be "looked over."

RECIPES FOR A DAY
Creamed Beef—One-fourth pound sliced beef, two tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one cup of milk.

Method: Place butter in frying pan, and when pan is hot, and butter melted, add the beef separated in small pieces. Allow it to fry. Add flour, thoroughly with beef and butter, allowing flour to brown a little. Add milk slowly, and cook until thick and smooth. Pour over heated rounds of bread, and if you wish, garnish with parsley.

Breaded Pork Chops—Four chops, lightly aware, too, of how little she knows of housewifery in comparison to you who have been the best housekeeper in the neighborhood for years and years.

Be gracious to her, Mother. She will learn just as you did, by experience—making your boy very happy the while even though the biscuits are burnt.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Page in care of the "What Shall I Do?" column will be answered in these columns in their turn. The requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

Pupils in the new course are: Howard Carney, William Fanning, Willis O'Connor, Henry Knott, Edwin Krueger, William Krueger and Bernard Marquart.
